Many chefs are excited to bring the heat, the chill and the flavor to the 2022 Opportunities for Education event on September 22 at the Food Innovation Center. You're in for a taste sensation of signature tastings from premier restaurants and chefs, complemented by a selection of beer and wine. We'll be introducing you to the chefs and their menu selections leading up to the event!

Meet Chef Lucas McFarland of Kalamazoo Valley Community College Culinary Operations. Chef Lucas started his culinary journey in Harbor Springs, MI at the age of fourteen while working at Out to Lunch, a restaurant specializing in classic American food. There, he established a solid foundation of the culinary basics. Hungry for more, he landed at The New York Restaurant, a premier dining destination nestled into the Harbor Springs Waterfront District. Tinkering with traditional French cooking techniques infused with international cuisines, and fueled by the abundance of available local produce and meats, he quickly rose through the ranks.

After six years at the New York Restaurant, he earned his associate's degree in culinary management and a certificate in the baking and pastry arts from @grandrapidscc.

Searching for a holistic approach to food service and healthy eating, Kalamazoo Valley Community College emerged as a cutting-edge program for sustainable food and beer brewing, so he joined the team as Culinary Operations Manager and Adjunct Instructor.

His menu selections include a Vegan option of Tri-colored Quinoa salad, seasonal vegetables from the Food Innovation Center with citrus and white balsamic vinaigrette. He will also serve a vegetarian dessert, blueberry flambé made with local blueberries and angel food cake.

Purchase tickets at the link in our bio. For more information, contact Dana DeLuca, Foundation Officer, at ddeluca@kvcc.edu or 269.488.4442.

After launching his career in Baton Rouge, LA., Chef Erwin polished his credentials at Atlanta dining establishments before coming north in 2010 to join the Millennium Restaurant Group. No need to book a flight to The Big Easy to get close to the classic cuisine of New Orleans. With over 20 years of experience specializing in Southern and Cajun cuisines, he displayed those talents at Millennium's Epic Bistro and the Union Cabaret & Grille in downtown Kalamazoo.

At the Cove since 2018, Chef Daniel demonstrates the extent of his gourmet talents with exquisite seafood entrees and appetizers, all of which can be complemented by an exciting roster of wine and unique cocktails.

🚧 CONSTRUCTION ALERT 🚧

Due to the current Walnut St. bridge construction project that began Sept. 7, there is a short-term change in how students access Kalamazoo Valley's Marilyn J. Schlack Culinary/Allied Health Building.

We expect this change to be in effect for the first few weeks of the semester.

Drivers planning to park in the student parking lot will need to temporarily access the parking lot from the Dutton St. entrances via Jasper St. or Portage Rd. Students parking in the lot should cross over Walnut St. to access the north sidewalk of the Walnut St. bridge and then cross back over Walnut St. to get to the building entrance.

Many chefs are excited to bring the heat, the chill and the flavor to the 2022 Opportunities for Education event on September 22 at the Food Innovation Center. You're in for a taste sensation of signature tastings from premier restaurants and chefs, complemented by a selection of beer and wine. We'll be introducing you to the chefs and their menu selections leading up to the event!

Meet Jennifer Burnett, a second year culinary student in the Kalamazoo Valley Community College Culinary Program. Chef Jennifer was born and raised in and around Kalamazoo. She is a non-traditional student who recently completed her first year in the Culinary Arts & Sustainable Food Systems with great success. She has had a passion for cooking and baking for many years, but was self-taught until she found her way into Kalamazoo Valley's culinary program. Jennifer participated in the Food for Thought competition in April and was awarded third place. Her award-winning canapés will be served at the event!

Her menu selections include Surf & Turf Canapés — aioli-toasted baguette smeared with a cream cheese/pesto/sundried tomato mixture, topped with marinated tenderloin and shrimp ceviche and garnished with pickled red onion and micro basil. Her menu selections also include Raspberry-Mango Mousse Parfait — raspberry-mango mousse layered with fresh raspberries and chocolate ganache.

Purchase tickets at the link in our bio. For more information, contact Dana DeLuca, Foundation Officer, at ddeluca@kvcc.edu or 269.488.4442.
